SATURDAY MORNING, JULY 7, 1877.

SUMMARY OF THE NEWS.

Two thousand men have arrived at Constantinople to witness the war on the fortifications.

A number of the officers and crew of the United States steamer Gettysburg paid a visit to the Pope yesterday.

It is officially announced that the Russian losses in crossing the Danube at Sadiets were 300 killed and 400 wounded.

Fifteen hundred persons, who were fleeing from Africa to the Turkish lines for fear of the Russians, perished from hunger.

All the Turks seem to confirm the view that the Turks are about to withdraw the greater part of the forces from Montenegro.

The Supreme Court (General) Term of New York has denied the motion for a new trial in the case of Joe Colburn, the imprisoned fugitive.

The Ontario Medical Council in session at Toronto, has adopted a resolution pledging its use to endeavor to suppress the import trade.

No important action is expected until the Russians have established depots of supplies on the southern side of the Danube and prepared everything for an advance.

Bolshain Pasha received yesterday orders to march from Podgoritsa toward the Danube, with forty-five battalions. About as many are ordered to Epire.

A battle was fought on Thursday in the vicinity of Trebil, which lasted twelve hours. The Russians were repulsed with considerable loss, and fell back to Epire.

E. W. Williams, of Berlin, has fallen. His failure does not affect the financial credit of Gleichen & Williams' shipping house. Mr. Williams retired from the firm six days ago.

General W. Wells, collector of customs for the district of Vermont, has removed W. H. McAllister, deputy collector of the port of St. Albans, for a deficiency of about $2,000 in his accounts.

Seven hundred and sixty-two unclaimed dogs were drowned at the pound in New York, on Thursday. Benefits of the dog-catchers have been忽略不计, the aggregate bills being $30.

The Greek and Roman Christians of Bosnia are anxiously awaiting the result of their petition asking for the occupation of Bosnia by Austrian troops. A portion of the Moslem population also favors foreign occupation.

The District of Columbia is fortunately possessed of a medical faculty distinguished for professional ability, integrity and industry. It is also unfortunately possessed of a large element of pauperism which dwells in the public institutions of the cheap banks of the Anacostia. As poverty begets disease, and vice creeps, the political economist and philanthropist labors to reduce the evils to the lowest degree possible, and as a mere matter of municipal police and frugality, this end is somewhat accomplished by transferring the indigent sick from the hospital of the almshouse in the fields of the almshouse; those fields we mean where the resident plants and is not planted, and then from those fields to the outside world where they may renew their self-sustaining efforts. Any step which will contribute to make a sick pauper a well citizen is an advance in the direction of reducing taxation. In addition to this, if an institution which is the refuge of the lazy, the vicious or the afflicted can be made contributory to the good of the whole community, if not of the whole of mankind, it remains no longer a mere necessary evil, but becomes a factor in the workshop of progress.

All the various institutions throughout this country supported by taxation and dedicated to the well-being of those who will not support themselves in health and cannot provide for themselves in sickness are furnished by staff of surgeons and physicians who gratuitously contribute their skill to alleviating suffering, curing disease and checking an otherwise growing draft upon the public treasury.

The medical man is proverbially charitable, extending his aid to the poor. He is also, if a true physician, enthusiastic enough to accept a half reward for his services the knowledge he derives and the pleasure he enjoys from those good offices which are exclusively within the range of the art of all arts.

At a meeting of the National Rifle Association yesterday it was resolved that the fall meeting be fixed for Monday, September 10, 1877, and the following Tuesday, Wednesday and Thursday; that the matches for the Centennial trophy take place on September 14 and 15, (Friday and Saturday).

In the address of the corporation of the town of Folkestone to Gen. Grant previous to his departure for the battle-field, and concluded by expressing the wish that he might have a third term as President of the United States and advancing the opinion that he would, in his reply Gen. Grant avoided all allusion to politics.

The address presented to Gen. Grant by the various institutions throughout this country supported by taxation and dedicated to the well-being of those who will not support themselves in health and cannot provide for themselves in sickness are furnished by staff of surgeons and physicians who gratuitously contribute their skill to alleviating suffering, curing disease and checking an otherwise growing draft upon the public treasury.

Another severe wind and rain storm visited central Indiana and Ohio Thursday evening, doing great damage. A boy was killed by a falling tree at Lima, Ohio and George W. Miller was killed by lightning at Madisonville, Pa. At Marietta, Ohio, half as large as hen's eggs fell in large quantities, and wheat and corn in the path of the storm are ruined.

To pass over the land of Korea and Japan, he had to sail north and cross the Yenisei, the Amur, the Ussuri, where he had to sail south and cross the Yellow River, and finally reach the Pacific ocean.
